PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Residents of eastern Pennsylvania Tuesday night were put on a hurricane watch by the U. S. Weather Bureau as ferocious Esther continued off shore up the Atlantic Seaboard.

The watch was issued for southeastern Pennsylvania, the Lehigh and Schuylkill River valleys and the Pocono Mountain area. Residents along tidal waters and other lowland areas were urged to move back until the threat of Hurricane Esther has passed.

In Harrisburg, Richard Gerstell, Pennsylvania Civil Defense director, said it is too early to tell whether the state as a whole could expect anything more than fringe effects from the hurricane.

6 A. M. To 6 P. M.

What Esther does between 6 a. m. and 6 p. m. Wednesday probably will determine how greatly it affects Pennsylvania. The Weather Bureau expects it to turn from its present north-northwesterly course to a more northerly course during daylight Wednesday.

If that happens, the hurricane could stay over the Atlantic Ocean and Pennsylvania would escape all but high winds and heavy rains.

Philadelphia was taking no chances. Its police department was placed on a hurricane alert. Managing Director Donald Wagner ordered the start of a city-wide emergency program after noting the Weather Bureau's forecast of possible strong winds through Wednesday's early hours.

The motor harbor patrol was ordered to watch for flood conditions on the Delaware and Schuylkill Rivers.

Wants Board Soviet Joins Tribute To Dag

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union joined 98 other U.N. delegations Tuesday in a standing tribute to Dag Hammarskjöld—then made clear it would keep up its fight for a three-man board to replace him.

"Any one person would not be good," said Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. He turned down a Western-supported move to name an interim secretary-general to fill temporarily the gap left by the death of Hammarskjöld in an African plane crash.

House Shuns JFK's Postal Hike Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's urgent plea for higher postal rates was shunted aside Tuesday in the drive for quick adjournment of Congress.

"Postal rates will not come up" for House action until next year, John W. McCormack, D-Mass., the acting speaker of the House, told newsmen.

Just when Congress will wind up isn't certain, McCormack said the House would be ready to quit by Saturday. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana also told reporters the Senate would shoot for Saturday, too, but added, "I think it's doubtful now."

Still to be acted on before adjournment are several appropriations bills, including the annual budget for the foreign aid program. The Senate added more than a half-billion dollars to the measure the House had passed earlier. Efforts to compromise the differences aren't scheduled to start until Thursday.

Mansfield and McCormack spoke to reporters after Democratic leaders held their weekly legislative conference with Kennedy at the White House.

McCormack said he told the President there was no chance for congressional action on the bill to raise postal rates. The Post Office deficit runs about $900 million a year.

Prospects were good for settlement of a strike that eight days ago shut down most of GM's 129 plants and idled more than 250,000 of the company's $50,000 hourly workers in the United States.

The UAW set Wednesday as the target date for ending the strike. The union's GM council will meet here at 2 p. m. to decide whether to recommend acceptance of the proposed contract by the members.

GM, Union Aim For Agreement

DETROIT (AP)—General Motors and United Auto Workers union negotiators went into a last-ditch marathon bargaining session Tuesday hopeful of reaching final agreement on a new three-year contract before dawn Wednesday.

Prospects were good for settlement of a strike that eight days ago shut down most of GM's 129 plants and idled more than 250,000 of the company's $50,000 hourly workers in the United States.

The UAW set Wednesday as the target date for ending the strike. The union's GM council will meet here at 2 p. m. to decide whether to recommend acceptance of the proposed contract by the members.

Logjam of Disputes

The logjam of disputes over local settlements was breaking up and two GM divisions were back in production. At Lansing, Mich., Oldsmobile turned out the first passenger car since the start of the strike. Sept. 12, GM's truck division at Pontiac, Mich., resumed production of trucks and buses Monday.

Crisis Of U.N. 2-Fold

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The crisis of the United Nations is not only one of men but also one of money.

The prophecy of the late Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld was that the organization would be "virtually without funds" by the end of this month.

The trouble is that too many U.N. members have not paid their shares of the cost of running the U.N. forces in the Middle East and the Congo.

The General Assembly must deal with the financial crisis in its 16th annual session, which started Tuesday—which is also confronted with a U.N. military-political crisis in the Congo.

Hammarskjöld made his prophecy in advance of the session as he proposed that the assembly appropriate $73.5 million as the regular U.N. budget for 1962, compared with the $72.9 million appropriated for this year.

But they were called on to pay more than twice that for the U.N. military operations—$19 million for the U.N. Emergency Force in the Middle East for all 1961 and $19 million for the U.N. Force in the Congo from July 1960 through 1961.

The latest accounts show that by the end of last month, they had paid only 32 per cent of what they owed to keep up the Middle East force and only 60 per cent of what they owed to keep up Congo force—though they had put in 67 per cent of their dues for the regular budget.

In his budget proposals, Hammarskjöld warned that unless there was more financial support by early next year, it would be impossible to keep the two forces going "even on a reduced scale."

He foresaw that the United Nations would be almost out of cash by Sept. 30 and would have to start borrowing again from special trust funds, as it has a few times in the last year.

Expect Deficits

He said that unless the assembly found some way of getting governments to pay up, the United Nations could anticipate cash deficits of $40 million by Dec. 31 and up to $90 million by June 30.

For this year, only 25 of the 99 U.N. member countries have paid anything toward the Congo force and only 21 have paid anything toward the Middle East force.

Seventy-four have never paid a cent toward the Congo operation and 37 have never paid a cent toward the Middle East operation since the late 1940s those establishments have existed.

The United States pays roughly a third of the cost of keeping up each force. In addition, it is voluntarily contributing more than $15 million toward the Congo military operation.

Select Texas Site As Moon Shot Center

WASHINGTON (AP)—A sprawling 1,000-acre site in Houston, Tex., was picked Tuesday for a $60-million laboratory command center—the mastermind of America's efforts to get a man to the moon.

Here the crews will be trained to fly the missions and the space craft themselves will be designed, developed and tested.

This is the final step in assigning the major centers from which project Apollo—the moon mission—will be coordinated.

American scientists hope to get a man on the moon by 1970.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced that its manned space flight research laboratory in Houston would be the command center for project Apollo and subsequent space flight missions.

It previously announced that the launching pad to the moon will be at the giant space base at Cape Canaveral, Fla. The rockets to lift the first American to the moon will be built at the government-owned Michoud Ordnance plant in New Orleans.

There still was no firm news about the 158 Irish soldiers captured at the mining town of Jadoville some 60 miles away.

The U.N. has said it believed they were being treated reasonably well, but nevertheless is gravely concerned for their safety.

The U.N. also reported that the airport of Kamina base in North Katanga still was firmly held by 500 Swedish, Irish and Malayan troops.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.N. official took Dag Hammarskjöld's vacant chair and opened truce talks with Katanga President Moïse Tshombe Tuesday.

The role of head negotiator for the United Nations fell to Mahmoud Khouri, chief of civil operations in the Congo.

A probe of the plane crash that killed the secretary-general and 14 of his 15 companions paralleled the delayed negotiations.

Expert opinion tended to discount speculation that Hammarskjöld's four-engine DC8B might have been felled by sabotage or Katanga gunfire.

Veteran pilots who viewed the fire-blackened wreckage in a forest reserve north of this neutral copper mining center said the crash appeared typical of the results of a power failure or faulty instrumentation.

Li. Col. Ben Matlick, U.S. air attaché in Leopoldville, was one who inspected the wreck. He said he is convinced talk that a Katanga jet shot down the plane is groundless.

"There's absolutely nothing in it," Matlick said.

There was no elaboration of a report by the lone survivor—Harold M. Harry Julien, 36, American U.N. security guard—that a series of explosions shook the plane before it plunged into the forest.

Army Calls 32nd, 49th

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army summoned another 73,000 Reservists and National Guardsmen to active duty Tuesday, ordering them to report Oct. 15.

The call-up went to two National Guard divisions—the 32nd Infantry of Wisconsin and the 49th Armored of Texas — and to 249 Reserve and Guard supporting units. The 32nd will train at Ft. Lewis, Wash., and the 49th at Ft. Polk, La.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, announcing the new call-up at a news conference, described it as another readiness measure in the light of world conditions. Asked if it indicated a worsening of the Berlin situation, he replied: "No, I think not."

Tunisian U.N. Aide To Congo

NDOLA, Northern Rhodesia (AP) — A Tunisian U.N. official took Dag Hammarskjöld's vacant chair and opened truce talks with Katanga President Moïse Tshombe Tuesday.

The role of head negotiator for the United Nations fell to Mahmoud Khouri, chief of civil operations in the Congo.

A probe of the plane crash that killed the secretary-general and 14 of his 15 companions paralleled the delayed negotiations.

Expert opinion tended to discount speculation that Hammarskjöld's four-engine DC8B might have been felled by sabotage or Katanga gunfire.

Veteran pilots who viewed the fire-blackened wreckage in a forest reserve north of this neutral copper mining center said the crash appeared typical of the results of a power failure or faulty instrumentation.

Li. Col. Ben Matlick, U.S. air attaché in Leopoldville, was one who inspected the wreck. He said he is convinced talk that a Katanga jet shot down the plane is groundless.

"There's absolutely nothing in it," Matlick said.

There was no elaboration of a report by the lone survivor—Harold M. Harry Julien, 36, American U.N. security guard—that a series of explosions shook the plane before it plunged into the forest.

Badly burned and only semi-conscious when he was pulled from the wreckage, Julien was reported to be as comfortable as could be expected in a hospital, but not in condition for questioning.

Awail Examination

The bodies of Hammarskjöld and the other victims awaited further post-mortem examination.

Col. Björn Egge, U.N. intelligence chief, said a surgeon has been flown in to establish exactly how they died—whether in the air or on the ground.

The recovery of the last two bodies momentarily puzzled authorities here, for that showed 15 persons were aboard.

The U.N. office in Leopoldville had listed only 14, but a check disclosed its list had omitted two security guards, both young Swedes.

McNamara noted that the other Guard divisions, the 26th Infantry of Massachusetts and the 28th Infantry of Pennsylvania, have been alerted and placed on a priority status. Whether they also will be called up, he said, depends on world conditions.

If conditions improve, the secretary said, the Wisconsin and Texas divisions may not have to stay in the full 12 months — the limit Congress placed on this type of Reserve emergency duty.

The Army on Sept. 6 alerted a total of 475 units in addition to the four Guard divisions. Thus, McNamara said, about 75,000 additional Reservists and Guardsmen are on notice that they may be called.

Esther's 25-Foot Swells Hit N.C.

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (AP)—Hurricane Esther slapped the North Carolina coast with 25-foot swells Tuesday night as she drove northward on a course that could rake the Eastern seaboard.

The storm, packing winds up to 130 miles per hour, lashed the Outer Banks area with winds that pushed waves over a 45-mile stretch of coastal highway. Hundreds were marooned in coastal fishing villages.

The Miami Weather Bureau in a late advisory placed the center of the storm 175 miles southeast of Hatteras. It said Esther likely would continue her north-northwestward course at about 15 m.p.h. through the night.

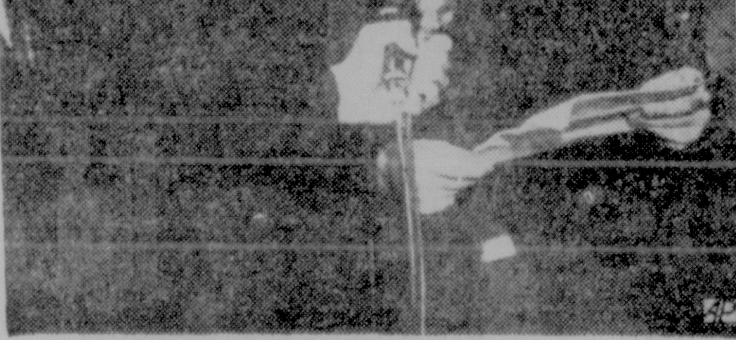

That course would bring her close to Virginia's heavily militarized Cape area, including the Norfolk - Hampton Roads Naval Base area.

Hurricane warnings were extended to cover the Virginia Capes, and a hurricane watch was ordered for the coast as far north as Massachusetts. Gale warnings were extended as far north as Portsmouth, N. H.

The Weather Bureau tabbed Esther "a large and dangerous storm," and said its center would pass "not far from but to the east of Cape Hatteras Wednesday morning."

With the center of the storm still well out to sea, winds up to 60 m.p.h. were reported along the northeast North Carolina coast.

Waves, slopping over and between sand dunes, cut off any retreat for residents of villages along the Outer Banks sand reef

County Health Knotted By Law

HARRISBURG (AP) — A new law signed by Gov. Lawrence Tuesday will make it tougher for a county to get rid of its county health department, once it has established one.

Only four counties presently have such county health units—Philadelphia, Allegheny, Bucks and Erie. Butler County had one, but ended it on a referendum vote several years ago.

The new law boosts the number of signatures required on a petition to put the question of removal on the ballot from 1 per cent of the highest vote cast in the previous election to 10 per cent.

It also prevents constantly recurring referendum questions on ending the county units by limiting such votes to once in five years.

In other action the governor vetoed a bill that would have established a state park in the Kinzua Bridge area of McKean County.

"The Department of Forests and Waters is opposed to this bill," Lawrence said in a veto statement.

The governor said that a state study indicated the bridge "has no historical significance and that the recreational potential of the area does not meet the minimum criteria established by the department for state parks."

"They also report," he added, "that maintenance and safety problems would be enormous."

The bill was approved with only two dissenting votes in the Senate and unanimously in the House.

The governor approved a number of other measures that will be charged by constables.

Remove a present limit on county school boards of one representative from each class of school district participating in county services to allow a representative from each class of district without further restriction.

Raise to $750 the allowable limit school directors may authorize their agents to purchase in either first or second class supplies. The present limit is $300.

Put all health department employees under the state employees' retirement system.

Allow school districts voting on merger plans to submit to voters the question of whether directors must be elected on the basis of one from each district, as long as the total number of directors would be the same.

Give state college professional employees credit for retirement purposes for leaves of absence for professional study.

Lawrence also signed bills that will:

Permit registration at their homes of voters who produce a physician's certificate saying they are not able to register at designated places in cities. The law takes effect next Jan. 1.

Expand coverage of the Workmen's Compensation Act to include all special school police in municipalities and townships who are injured in the course of their work.

Lawrence vetoed a bill which would have liberalized pension laws in effect in political subdivisions. He said:

"The provisions of this bill would further authorize the governing bodies of such political subdivisions to increase the (pension) payments to former employees after termination of their services."

from Oregon Inlet to Hatteras. The residents were not considered to be in any immediate danger.

North Carolina officials said it appeared the state's eastern agricultural region would escape major damage. The huge tobacco crop already has been harvested, but corn and other crops are still in the fields.

Northward, preparations were underway in metropolitan centers to ride out the storm. The Virginia Capes were shuttered tightly.

The Weather Bureau said the hurricane had weakened some in its central area and maximum sustained winds near the center were estimated at 130 m.p.h.

Esther was expected to continue moving north-northwest during the next 12 hours and then north during the following 12 hours. In its path were fertile coastal farm areas and metropolitan centers. However, much of the rich North Carolina and Virginia tobacco crop already has been harvested.

The North Carolina coastline and the Virginia Capes were shuttered tightly, but many old timers on the fabled Outer Banks, known as the graveyard of the Atlantic, refused to leave.

The Weather Bureau warned that tides would increase more than the predicted 4 to 8 feet should the hurricane take a slightly more westerly course than now indicated.

Many late-season tourists and residents of low-lying areas streamed inland. North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford had urged complete evacuation of the Outer Banks.

The weather bureau said the eye, or center, of the immense storm should pass not far off the Cape Hatteras coast Wednesday morning.

The entire seaboard north of the Virginia Capes was alerted to the threat of Esther, whose gales extend outward 350 statute miles.

Hurricane watch and gale warnings were displayed north of the Virginia Capes to Cape May, N.J., including all of Chesapeake and Delaware bays and from south of Cherry Point, N.C., to Myrtle Beach, S. C.

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will meet Thursday afternoon to discuss the Berlin crisis and the crisis in the United Nations.

U.S. sources disclosed Tuesday night that Gromyko had accepted an invitation to lunch with Rusk at 1 p.m. EDT that day. The invitation was extended a few hours earlier when Rusk and Gromyko attended the brief opening meeting of the United Nations Assembly Tuesday afternoon.

Informants said that Berlin would be discussed — a point on which Washington and Moscow agreed last week. The crisis in U.N. affairs arising from the death of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld is also expected to get an airing at the luncheon.

Rusk had said he intended to talk over the U.N. situation with Gromyko.

Rusk met with British Foreign Secretary Lord Home Tuesday night for what aides called a long discussion of U.N. affairs. No details were disclosed. But Rusk and Home are concerned about the threat to U.N. operations, particularly in the Congo, by the Soviet Union's opposition to appointment of a successor to Hammarskjöld.

Served Notice

Gromyko served notice Tuesday afternoon, at an informal meeting with newsmen, that he would insist on acceptance by the United Nations of the Soviet Union's proposal to turn over executive powers to a three-man board.

The Rusk invitation to Gromyko was extended in a brief talk held by Charles E. Bohlen with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin. The two met in the General Assembly hall. The lunch will be in Rusk's suite in a midtown New York hotel. Several aides of each man will attend to assist in the discussion.

Plan Revised Berlin Booklet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department announced Tuesday it will rewrite a historical pamphlet on Berlin, to make clear that former President Dwight D. Eisenhower was not responsible for the way Germany was divided after World War II.

The original version set off a string of Republican protests and a statement from Eisenhower that the issue was decided at a level above his office as Allied commander.

Press officer Joseph W. Reap said the disputed paragraph in the department's just-issued pamphlet, "Background Berlin—1961," will be revised in the next edition to make sure "no criticism is implied or intended" of Eisenhower's wartime "belief that the Western armies could be more usefully employed elsewhere rather than in an assault on Berlin."

The revised wording states that the occupation status of Berlin had already been agreed on among the Allied governments including the Soviet Union when the Western armies made their final push into Germany.

Reap said the main point of the original wording had been to refute a Soviet claim that the Western Allies had no rights to Berlin because the Soviets get there first.

Dag's Death Perils UN

The death of Dag Hammarskjöld in an airplane accident in Northern Rhodesia comes at a critical time in world history and threatens the very life of the United Nations as an instrument for peace.

Secretary General Hammarskjöld was a dedicated, patient servant who never wavered in his efforts to accomplish the seemingly impossible task of bringing about world peace.

That he was able to resist the tremendous pressures that came from all sides within the UN is ample evidence that he felt that right would prevail over might in the ever-mounting struggle for world leadership. These pressures came from the East, the West and the so-called neutral nations seeking to become the balance of power between East and West.

The fact that Mr. Hammarskjöld stood firm against every Communist bloc effort to twist the purposes and actions of the UN to further its own selfish interests is additional proof of the secretary general's dedication to duty.

But, critical as the events of his era seemed to be at the time, the days that face the world organization in the immediate future are even more perilous. For instance, there appears little chance that any candidate the West might propose as Hammarskjöld's successor will be acceptable to the Communists. This is the opportunity they have been waiting for since their unsuccessful efforts to dethrone the secretary general or at least drastically limit his powers.

On the other hand, Russia is proposing a plan thoroughly unacceptable to the West in which the office of secretary general would be replaced by a three-man secretariat, representing the East, West and neutral nations and each having the power of veto.

Only a miracle, it seems, will prevent an indefinite East-West deadlock that would paralyze the UN and all but kill all chances of reaching agreements on such explosive issues as the Berlin situation, nuclear weapons, Congo warfare and admission of Communist China.

The picture is indeed gloomy, if not ominous. Neither East nor West wants war, but the prospects for peace are mighty slim and will remain so unless the diplomats of both sides show a greater determination to go all-out to prevent a catastrophic war.

Reports From Congress

President Loses Biggest Battle

By Congressional Quarterly
Washington — The two school bills moving to the President's desk represent the bitter remnants of his most ferocious legislative battle this year.

Nevertheless, they are extensions of substantial programs which will cost the Federal Government $1.3 billion in aid to education over the next two years.

One of the programs gives federal funds to build and operate public schools and pay teachers in districts "impacted" by federal activities. This is the very type of aid which his opponents rejected and the President wanted for the entire country.

Why the big battle? The two programs which Congress did send the President — two-year extensions of impacted areas aid and the National Defense Education Act — were designed to meet specific needs caused by loss of taxes through federal property or considered desirable in the name of national defense.

Without such a rationale to protect it, the general school aid bill gave the opposition a target for charges of "federal control" and "spending" and this, plus the religious controversy and confused legislative handling, doomed it.

Following is a capsule history of the eight-month school aid battle which has ended in a serious defeat for the Administration.

The President in February asked Congress to authorize $2.3 billion in federal funds to help all of the states build public schools and pay their teachers. In his request, the President took the firm stand that equal aid to private schools was barred by the Constitution.

Religious Issue — This touched off the religious controversy, and led the Catholic hierarchy to fire off a reply that Catholic schools must be given some sort of aid or they would work for defeat of the President's bill.

The Administration public school aid bill, as usual, had clear sailing through the Senate, but was clearly in trouble in the House. There it had to survive the strong opposition of not only Republicans and Southern Democrats, but a substantial portion of the 88 Catholic Members.

As a way out, the Administration and its Congressional leaders decided to ask for extension of the NDEA, with Congress adding loans for private schools in which "defense" subjects — science, mathematics, foreign languages, physical fitness — would be taught.

But this only riled Members who objected to private school aid and what they considered a "side-door" approach to the subject.

So the House Rules Committee killed the public school bill, the NDEA bill, and a bill giving colleges loans and grants for classroom construction and federal scholarships.

Second Defeat — A last-minute attempt to get House approval of a vastly watered-down public school construction aid bill was also roundly defeated on the House floor.

Then Congress detached the impacted areas extension from the public school bill — it had been put there in the hope it would attract votes — attached it to a simple extension of the NDEA bill, extended both programs for two years, and sent them to the President.

And, with something like a coup de grace, the President was denied in the end a strategic position which would have helped him join the battle next year — if he felt so inclined, Mr. Kennedy asked Congress to extend NDEA and impacted areas aid for only one year — so they could be "re-studied." But Congress extended them for two years, thus taking them off the field of battle for 1962.

They Threaten Peace

According to President Sukarno of Indonesia, no bloc of nations was to be organized at Belgrade. He said:

"We came together here not as members of a bloc, for indeed countries which conduct a policy of non-alignment do not constitute a bloc. We abhor the very idea of blocs."

"We have come together because we maintain the view that the creation of blocs, especially when based upon power politics and the armaments race, can only lead to war which, in this nuclear era, can only mean the extinction of mankind."

"There was no prior consultation and agreement between us before we adopted our respective policies of non-alignment." In the first place, Belgrade did pass a resolution which in its nature constitute those who accepted it as a bloc and which, despite Khrushchev's shooting off nuclear weapons for no purpose, left the delegates without a word to say against Khrushchev and his bombs.

This silence violates decency and makes it an impudence on the part of Sukarno to come to the United States to plead with President Kennedy to meet with Khrushchev. Sukarno is a fanatical demagogue who can attack every country except Soviet Russia and Red China of which he lives in fear. Read this paragraph:

Lack Of Iodine Causes Goiters

By Burton H. Fern, M. D.
Dear Doctor: Should I buy iodized or plain salt? What's the difference?

Mrs. W. T.
Dear Mrs. T.: Without iodine, thyroid glands swell into goiters. Iodine is scarce in inland areas. There, iodine-containing — iodized — salt provides the ration others get from sea food.

Dear Doctor: I can feel something in my throat. Could this be nerves?

Mrs. A. J.
Dear Mrs. J.: Possibly—but it could be something in your throat. Let your doctor decide!

Dear Doctor: What should I do when the top edge of a soft drink bottle chips off?

Mrs. R. T.
Dear Mrs. T.: Exchange the bottle, or filter the pop through a sterile gauze pad wedged in a strainer!

Sleeping Habits Change
Dear Doctor: After recovering from mumps and encephalitis (brain inflammation), my 18-year-old son has had to sleep 10 to 11 hours each night. Can encephalitis cause this?

Mrs. L. W.
Dear Mrs. W.: Sometimes, but a hospital stay can change sleeping habits. Your son may sleep less when he has to go to bed a few hours earlier to wake up on time for work or school.

Child Has Pains
Dear Doctor: We've taken our baby daughter to three doctors because she has a painful, swollen knee and ankle. But the trouble still persists. What can you suggest?

Mrs. W. R.
Dear Mrs. R.: Ask one of the three doctors to explain the trouble. Many conditions, from allergy and injury to rheumatic fever and infection, swell joints. Even doctors need a battery of tests to pinpoint the problem!

From The Realm Of Stamps

By Ray Patton
Canada will issue Oct. 12, a five-cent commemorative for "Resources for tomorrow." It was designed by A. L. Pollock of Toronto and will be printed in brown and green.

Ten provincial governments, together with the federal government, will participate in the conference being held in Montreal. The major objective of the conference is to move beyond the old concept of "conservation" of natural resources to the multiple use and development of the country's renewable resources.

This concept touches everyone's livelihood because of the direct and indirect dependence on the use of agriculture and forest lands, and water resources whether for industry, fisheries or hydro-electric power.

As part of its contribution to the programme, the Post Office department is issuing this stamp symbolizing the renewable resources, and their link with the wheel of industry and man's responsibility for a balanced control.

The stamp is intended to make all who see it, in Canada and abroad, conscious of the urgent need for planning effective use of our resources today if we are to enjoy them in the future.

Club News
The Monroe Stamp Club will resume regular meetings starting tonight at 8 at Ray Patton's house on Franklin Hill. Regular meeting place will be decided upon and plans made for a trip to the Scranton Exhibit, and also for the club's county-wide school exhibit.

New members are welcome. The Stamp Club will start the last of October.

The Pennsylvania Story

What Was The Issue?

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — As Pennsylvania's post-legislative days amble into focus, a question recurring with more and more frequency and perhaps urgency around Capitol Hill is: who really dropped the ball on the educational financing program during the 1961 session?

The answer of course is as hard and difficult to answer as it is intriguing.

The whole issue unquestionably will be fought through the elections this fall and the gubernatorial-legislative elections next year.

On the beetling question though, there are some points well worth noting, well worth evaluating:

To begin with, let's look at the record for a moment. Back on August 28 Governor Lawrence issued one of his many statements imploring the Legislature to act on the educational beef-up program laid out by his special education study committee. Most of the recommendations were actually enacted—but not all.

At that time Mr. Lawrence as he had previously pleaded for "bipartisan" support, contending that the educational issues should transcend partisan considerations. In fact it was on August 28 that he said flatly: "This program should not bear any partisan label."

On Sept. 12, some 11 days after the Legislature adjourned finally, Mr. Lawrence called educators, interested lawmakers and members of the special education study committee to his office for signing into law of 19 top educational bills.

One of the bills not before him to sign was the controversial $23 million education interim appropriation bill that failed to pass in the dying hours of the legislative session.

At this Sept. 12 gathering of nonpartisan education people, Mr. Lawrence said of the missing $23 million appropriation:

"It fell, as you all know, because there was not a single Republican Senator willing to provide the 26th vote needed to pass it. And it is important to remember that the measure passed the House with Democratic votes, only."

The measure in question designed to raise the $23 million and that went down to defeat was the administration's proposed two percent tax on investments.

Did this "negative" vote on the part of anti-administration Republicans in the House and Senate constitute a "vote against education" as Democrats (including the Governor) insist?

This—and it is important—is destined to become the key campaign issue on the subject. Pennsylvanians seemingly would do well to think twice before answering the question.

There is the matter of those 19 educational program bills signed into law by the Governor on that Sept. 12 date with appropriate hoopla and rhetoric which the Governor at one point referred to as "monuments of which we can all be proud."

Those bills—like the $23 million educational appropriation measure that failed to pass—could not have cleared legislative desks without Republican anti-administration support!

Can Republicans actually be accused of "voting against education" as their Democratic counterparts (who say the issue is "nonpartisan") insist?

The issue, it will be recalled, was whether support could be gained for the "tax" measure—not the principle of aid to education.

This admittedly is a "fine" point but it is destined to become a critical point in the months ahead. It is a point on which voters of the Keystone State will have to take their stand.

Who really dropped the ball? The answer has many ramifications and undeniably, possible interpretations. It's of concern to nearly everyone—whether they have school children, or are just plain taxpayers.

A STROUD Township fireman suffered a burned hand while fighting an early morning blaze in a one-room bungalow at Analomink yesterday. Rice said the destroyed structure was used as a clubhouse but did not know by whom. It is located on property owned by Harold Ony. The fire was reported by a passing trucker. tors of the Children's Aid Society of Monroe County at the Penn-Stroud yesterday noon.

First endorsed by the Social Planning Committee of the Monroe County Community Chest as early as 1953, Family Service has been a matter of continuous study by the Children's Aid Society which has prepared an outline and tentative budget of such a service if combined with its present service to neglected and dependent children.

Meetings have been held with national representatives of Family Service and with Jesse Pierson, current chairman of the Social Planning Committee of the Chests.

The Monroe County Commissioners, also concerned with the problem of mounting juvenile delinquency, also sponsored a meeting of agencies and individuals interested in how Family Service could work to prevent this and many other problems in the community.

Vote To Move Ahead

The directors voted to empower the Family Service Committee to continue efforts to bring Family Service into existence.

Mrs. William Wells presided at the meeting when a report of the fiscal year was given by Edwin Krawitz, treasurer.

Charles Jones, executive secretary, gave a composite report on summer activities of the agencies. One of the brightest note was the report that seven children had been dismissed from foster home care: Three to their own parents, one who graduated from high school to herself, two to their own parents with continued counseling service, and one into an adoption home.

There were four children accepted into care.

Present caseload of the agency includes 111 children in care representing 36 families of whom 62 are in foster homes or institutions, and 49 are under protective care.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

There's nothing can take you mind off other worries as effectively as some rushing hurricane warnings. With modern electrical living even such mild results as disruption of public utilities can cause a lot of inconvenience.

Elizabeth Harmon had more than inconvenience to worry about what with son Jack a captain of his first ship—a 14-foot vessel, enroute to Bermuda; son-in-law Frank Kovaric, in a Navy vessel just out of Miami; and daughter Susan and the baby up in New London, which is also in the threatened path of the hurricane. Fortunately Russell can house from North Carolina in order to help her worry. This way they can each worry a separate direction.

A more pleasant way to stop worrying was to listen to the Lantz youngsters in the concert they gave for some 43 members of the Pocono Community Concerts campaign committee on Monday night. There was another happy note about the meeting: The association honored four of its workers who have been active workers since the first campaign was held under the dynamic prodding of the late Ora Levering in 1937.

Flowers were presented to Julia Sieg, Fran Everitt, Louise Ott and Carroll All—and I can't imagine anybody who deserves them more.

Speaking of prodding, poking and conking, an interesting discussion developed at the DAR luncheon table when the regent of the Tunkhannock chapter and I were examining the handsome gavel which Mrs. Andrew has presented to the chapter.

Well-balanced and weighted, it fitted nicely in the hand and to me, at least, was a temptation to conk somebody on the head—not, you understand, any particular somebody or from any personal animosity but merely because it seemed so well suited to that end.

Knives of a certain shape also seem ideally suited for stabbing. Such impulses used to worry me, but I've discovered that even the most tender-hearted person never can seem to resist the juxtaposition of a fly swatter and a person bending over.

Certain weapons seem to suggest attack for their own sakes. In these days of push-button warfare, we can only hope that the controls don't fall to somebody who just can't resist pushing buttons. Maybe we'd better get back to worrying about the hurricane.

Want Important Job? Try Volunteer Work

By Roberta Fleming Roesch

"You don't have to be a career woman to be doing something important," says Mrs. Hilda Sault. "You can be a volunteer worker."

Actually, warm-hearted, energetic Hilda Sault is better qualified than most women to make this kind of statement, for she has been highly successful both as a career woman and a volunteer worker.

Worked in Merchandising During World War II she worked in the merchandising field, starting as a secretary and moving up to an executive position with a five-figure salary. Then when she found out her child was on the way, she decided to put the demands and pressures of a top-level career behind her and go on to another sort of life.

"But after my daughter was born, I still had a lot of energy left over to give to something," Mrs. Sault told me. "So I began looking around for something important that I could do."

Volunteer Job

One day, when Mrs. Sault had been talking along these lines, her mother saw an enlistment booth asking for workers for the United Cerebral Palsy Association, Inc. She took a chance and signed up as a volunteer.

The organization was an infant at that time. Mrs. Sault recalls, started by a handful of parents who had nowhere to turn for help for cerebral palsy victims. But volunteer work for it was her answer to her wish for important work, so she began going to the organization's office to type, help clean the office, tie bundles of kits and lead trucks. Today, several years later, she is Chairman of the Women's Committee for UCPA.

"There's so much important work to do," she explained with the combination of dedication and enthusiasm that adds up to her charm. "Cerebral palsy is a neuromuscular affliction that follows injury to the motor centers of the brain. Every 33 minutes a child is born with it, and there are 600,000 people afflicted with it in the United States. It can happen to anyone at any time of life.

"One of my jobs right now is to help recruit thousands of new women volunteers across the country for clerical work, fund raising, driving, taking children on outings, feeding patients and numerous other tasks."

Something To Offer "Every woman has something to offer to volunteer work," Mrs. Sault concluded enthusiastically. "There's great opportunity there, and there's an unexplainable something that happens to you when you give yourself to something important."

"You find the world's best tranquilizer. And you feel you're floating on air."

The Wyckoff Shopper

The Family Shopper

Sunday the 17th marked my 10th anniversary with Wyckoff's, but not quite the tenth of the Wyckoff Shopper column. The Shopper began, as I recall, around the end of the first week of October, with the radio program a week or so following. When it began, it was to last only until Christmas, and I didn't plan to work after that. Strange, isn't it, how Fate runs us? Sometimes I think it is a wonderful thing to be rooted in one place, when that place is one's home town. Other times I think I'm in a rut, and no rut is comfortable for long. Right now, from my office window, I see acres of blue sky and feel the nip of Autumn in the air. Somewhere along the road a busload of happy people, conducted by our Travel Bureau, is enroute to Cape Cod. Momentarily, I am itchy footed... but then why tell you? I'm sure you know exactly what I mean!

My mail brings a pretty pink envelope and note paper with the word Curity in deep blue. An excellent choice of color, I think, for a firm manufacturing baby products, and one that gives the spirits a lift. Dolores Hook of Curity has written to thank everyone at Wyckoff's for the kindness shown Miss Curlett during her visit in our Infants' department, and to say that both the Wyckoff Shopper column and radio program were much appreciated. We enjoyed her letter, but we too are appreciative of Curity, and the enthusiasm our women customers feel for that well known name.

Speaking of pretty things, we might mention meeting Connie Pentz in our Gift Wrap Center the other day. Connie tells me she's very happy with her role in "My Fair Lady" on Broadway, and is kept busy with eight performances a week. However, she is not too keen about living in New York so hurries home at every opportunity to be with her husband and mother.

Charming too, is Miss Mildred Wheatley, acting Dean of Women at East Stroudsburg State College this year, during the absence of Dean Ruth Jones. Miss Wheatley attended the party for the Freshman girls in our Tea Room this past Saturday, and both Betty Bartholomew and I were delighted to welcome her.

There were about 200 girls attending, and all of us were wishing our Tea Room had elasticized walls. Despite limitations everything went very well, and Hazel Henning's refreshment table looked lovely.

On checking over the registration slips, I noticed a number of guests from the Stroudsburgs: Susan Ann Flory, her sister, Ruth, and their house guest, exchange-student Nuala Downey of Tamarunui, New Zealand; Divine Kemmerer, Susan Custard, Evangeline Glalouris, Nancy Bard, Marion Liebert, Geraldine Brink, Bethany Denning, Donna Grover, and, from Saylorburg, Diana Correll. Perhaps the most unusual registration was that of Linda BEAR from Red Lion. At any rate, all were most welcome, and we must thank Jess Pierson, manager of our Sears store, for adding Sears' anniversary pens and combs to our big baskets of souvenirs. As usual, the wiggle-head dolls were a tremendous hit.

Our prize winners were: Sally Thorne, Maria Marnhout, Paula Lucas, Duane Kemp, Tina Fornwalt, Joan Cool, Sue Harvey, Mary Ann Moore, Madelyn Rogers, Ruth Ann Hansen, Divine Kemmerer, and Carol Reed.

Did you know this is National Dog Week? Already we have crowned our pup at home, but not in the way we sometimes feel like crowning him after he's wrecked our newspapers, our socks, and our bath towels. We're all delighted he joined our household, however, despite his pranks which can be pretty wild at times. If you have a puppy, why not buy him a gift this week? Amy Eilenberger offers a big variety of toys and necessities in our Notions department. And by the way, a customer tells us we sell bird seed cheaper than some of the so-called "ten cent stores." Did you know?

Letter Scoffs At Life Attempt

PARIS (AP)—A letter signed with the name of ex-Gen. Raoul Salan challenged government assertions that a recent bomb plot was a genuine attempt on President De Gaulle's life.

The letter, published Tuesday in the newspaper Le Monde, said the incident was an "odious machination, mixing the unlikely with the ridiculous." The letter suggested that persons close to De Gaulle were behind the "false attack" to reduce opposition.

French authorities linked the plot with a secret army organization directed by Salan.

Keiper's citation read in part: "During the period of the disaster which occurred because of a concentrated heavy rain between June 28 and 29, 1961, your honorable service rendered for the rescue of sufferers without taking notice of your own danger, was remarkably distinguished." The men aided in the rescue of some 40 persons who were in immediate danger during the flood.

School Reorganization

Department Of Instruction Is Bustling With Activity

(First in a series of four articles on school district reorganization.)

By HERB LINNEN

HARRISBURG (AP)—Pennsylvania's Department of Public Instruction is bustling with more activity than usual these days.

Lawyers and educators are developing the initial outlines of a far-reaching, five-year program for consolidating the Commonwealth's 2,185 school districts into fewer and bigger units.

The activity was sparked by a new law signed by Gov. Lawrence

Sept. 12. It gives the Commonwealth power to require school district reorganization.

The legislation is being studied and analyzed in every detail by DPI legal counsel. In addition, departmental staff members are going over statistics and studying how the new law might be implemented in as orderly a fashion as possible.

When the governor signed the consolidation measure into law, he called it the most far-reaching of all the education bills adopted in the 1961 session.

The next move is up to school boards in the various counties. It will be their task to draft reorganization plans for their areas. The State Council of Education either will approve or reject these plans.

Great Overhaul

By July 1, 1962, and as the program reaches fruition in the years to follow, a great overhaul of Pennsylvania's school administration will have been accomplished.

It will mean reducing the number of school districts in the state from the present 2,185 to between 300 and 400.

It will affect school taxes at the local level. Some will go up, some down, some will stay the same.

New districts will cut across the boundaries of political subdivisions.

The districts will be larger in size. The law fixes 4,000 as the minimum pupil population per district. Exceptions will be made, however, to permit an absolute minimum of 2,500 pupils in a district.

This program, its architects say, will make substantial improvements in curriculum possible. A greater variety of subjects will be offered in classrooms of larger districts.

In short, consolidation proponents say the reorganization plan will mean a better education for every Pennsylvania youngster. (Tomorrow: The big debate.)

Adenauer Determined

BONN, Germany (AP)—Konrad Adenauer, despite his 85 years and the setback his Christian Democratic party suffered in the parliamentary election, showed today a determination yesterday to try to hold onto the chancellorship of West Germany.

His party's loss Sunday of about 5 per cent of the total vote and 40 seats in the Bundestag (lower house) cost him the absolute majority with which he has been running a one-man show for a dozen years.

This apparently has put him at the mercy of his political enemies, who are bent on bringing about his downfall. But he made it clear he would not give up without a fight. He told a news conference he had no intention of entering a coalition with the newly powerful Christian Socialists.

Not To Weaken

The coalition government that will have to be formed before the 499-member Bundestag sits Oct. 17 and chooses a new chancellor is not expected to mean any weakening of this country's membership in the Western alliance or major change in its domestic policies.

But the existence of a lame duck government until then will keep the Big Four powers under a disadvantage in their attempts to reach agreement among themselves and begin negotiations with the Soviet Union on Berlin.

Official preliminary calculations for the new four-year Bundestag show the Christian Democrats down from 281 seats to 241 seats. Thus they can no longer pick a chancellor single-handedly.

The balance of power now lies with the liberal Free Democrats, who went up from 43 to 66 seats. They are insisting that Adenauer be dropped in a coalition government and replaced by the No. 2 Christian Democrat, Ludwig Erhard, 64, the deputy chancellor and economics minister.

The Socialist party, which ran West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt for chancellor, increased its Bundestag membership from 168 to 190. But the other two parties have ruled out a coalition because of the Socialists' welfare state program.

Quake Shakes Taipei
TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—An earthquake shook Taipei yesterday, but no damage or casualties were reported.

Judge David E. Groshen of Montgomery County Common Pleas Court, ordered Nichol to appear Oct. 6 for sentencing.

Nichol was a Pennsylvania State University freshman when the shooting occurred in a park in Cheltenham Township, Philip Curci, 18, Philadelphia, was shot during an argument with Nichol who claimed he fired in self-defense.

Marriage Out

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—The city bus administration has reaffirmed a ruling that any of its 700 conductresses who get married will automatically lose their jobs. The agency said married women "are likely to become expectant mothers and this condition is incompatible with the arduous duties of bus conductresses."

Nfld Youth To Represent 4-H At Show

NEWFOUNDLAND—Michael Campbell, a member of the 4-H Boys and Saddle Club of Newfoundland, will represent the local unit at Harrisburg at the State 4-H Horse and Pony Show as a result of his winning a first place at the district Horse and Pony Show at Dalton recently.

The district event was held at the John Vass Stables and included 65 participants from Bradford, Sullivan, Susquehanna, Wayne and Wyoming Counties.

"Mike" who has been riding for nearly four years, was entered in several classes with his horse, "Babe." He is a past president and is now vice president of the local club, which is under the supervision of Ted Ash, of "Timbertop," South Sterling.

Local winners in the district show include the following: grooming and showmanship, junior division, Martha Campbell, second; Susan Smith, third; senior division, Mike Smith, second.

Western pleasure, pony division, Gary Carlson, fifth. Western working, Mike Smith, fifth.

Equitation, western division, Mike Campbell, first; Mike Smith, third.

In the elimination for first place in the combined junior and senior classes, Mike Campbell, first.

Barrel race, Mike Smith, fifth.

The Harrisburg show will be held on the night of November and during the day on November 10 in an indoor arena. The Dalton show was also held in an indoor arena.

Door Open For SS Aid For Refused

SOME 160,000 folks in this country who were turned down before can now get monthly social security payments, according to Harry R. Peterman, manager of the Easton district office.

They can now qualify because Congress has reduced the length of time a person must work to get payments. Some of these 160,000 folks live in this area. They include not only the older workers, but the families of deceased workers as well.

Peterman advised that Con who were turned down before, because they or the breadwinner in their family hadn't worked quite long enough, to get in touch with their social security office. He also reminded them their payments can't start until a new claim is made.

Peterman advised that Congress made other changes in social security too. For full information on them all visit your social security office at 204 Northampton St., Easton, or telephone Blackburn 8-7258.

Deny Youth, 20 Third Trial

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Arthur G. Nichol, 20, of Elkins Park, Tuesday was denied a third trial for the 1960 Memorial Day slaying of another youth. Nichol was convicted of second degree murder.

Judge David E. Groshen of Montgomery County Common Pleas Court, ordered Nichol to appear Oct. 6 for sentencing.

Nichol was a Pennsylvania State University freshman when the shooting occurred in a park in Cheltenham Township, Philip Curci, 18, Philadelphia, was shot during an argument with Nichol who claimed he fired in self-defense.
